The examiner provided input into the claims where in terms of a broad reasonable interpretation the claims read on the specified scope of the prior art. The applicant stated they felt that they could provide a new more inclusive set of claims in an RCE and proceed forward with prosecution, The examiner also provided input into the interpretation of a monitor as being a broad term that could be considered a content area on the display which encompasses a broad number of display objects. The examiner also stated that any submission with an RCE would be subject to further search and consideration by the examiner..
